Synopsis book

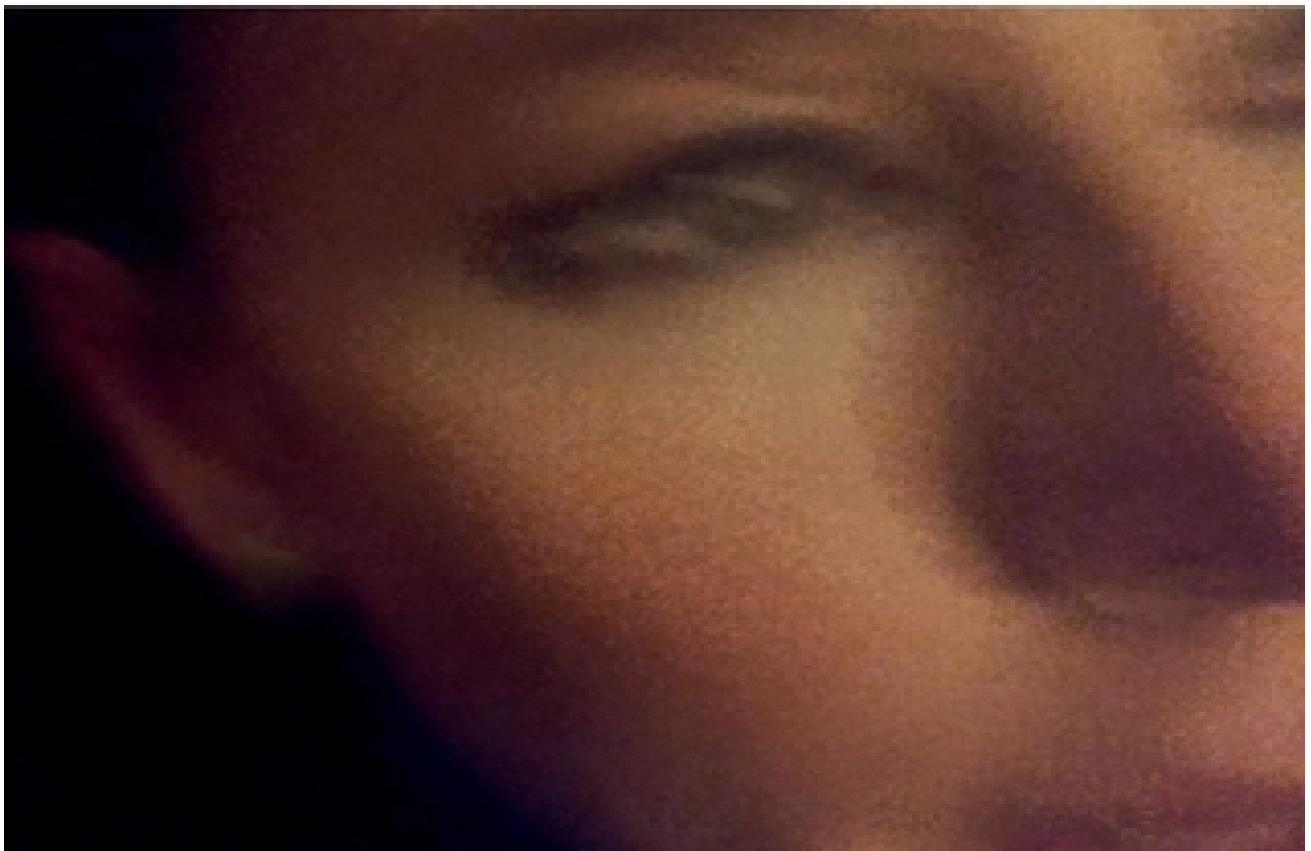

Labelled an Afrikaans traitor's child, Nicole is desperate for acceptance since her recent move to dangerously polarized small-town South Africa. Naseem is a notorious local Indian boy and obsessed with the ballerina even before stalking her the first time in his parents' warehouse.

The intense bond between them is obvious to their families, her brother and Mosh, Naseem's closest confidant and township activist, who struggles to accept the white girl. When Nicole is whisked across the world, an exquisite socialite draws her into the hedonism of late eighties Greece. She freefalls into superficiality before Naseem's unexpected arrival in Athens. Amidst betrayal, depravity and death, Nicole spirals out of control and Naseem detaches to take the revenge he has craved for so long. It seems that nothing can bring either back to the other intact.
