

The background of the book cover is a detailed illustration. On the left side, there is a close-up of a woman's face, shown in profile, looking downwards. Her eyes are closed, and her expression is serene. She has dark, wavy hair that cascades down. A thin, light-colored headband or crown is visible on her forehead. The right side of the cover features a dark, textured background that resembles a night sky or a dense forest. The overall color palette is muted, with dark blues, greys, and earthy tones.

One rain-swept February night in 1809, an unconscious man is carried into a house in Somerset. He is Captain John Lacroix, home from Britain's disastrous campaign against Napoleon's forces in Spain. Gradually Lacroix recovers his health, but not his peace of mind - he cannot talk about the war or face the memory of what happened in a village on the gruelling retreat to Corunna. After the command comes to return to his regiment, he sets out instead for the Hebrides, with the vague intent of reviving his musical interests and collecting local folksongs. Lacroix sails north incognito, unaware that he has far worse to fear than being dragged back to the army: a vicious English corporal and a Spanish officer are on his trail, with orders to kill. The haven he finds on a remote island with a family of free-thinkers and the sister he falls for are not
